Kimi Cole has been a Nevadan since 1956, currently based in Carson City, and is a retired construction project manager. Cole is openly transgender, having publicly transitioned a decade ago, and is a champion for LGBTQ+ rights. She has been a longtime fixture in Nevada Democratic politics since 2012, and formerly served as Chair of the Douglas County Democratic Party. Cole currently serves as Chair of the Rural Nevada Democratic Caucus, and has long advocated for more investment by the Party in Nevada's rural counties. Her work organizing rural Democrats has served as a model for state Democratic parties across the nation.
